

Definition 1 - My first definition

This is my first definition

Definition 2 - My second definition

If i don't want to use a reference, i can use the commands without the last r

I can reference an environment by its code like My first definition

Theorem 1 - My first theorem

This is my first theorem

Because of the different labels, i can use the same code and reference My first theorem without contradictions

Example 1 - My first example. This is my first example.

I can also reference examples like My first example

Demonstration.

This is my first demonstration
